

MUSIC for a While

LIVE MUSIC IN THE HOSPITAL ENVIRONMENT

The Music for a While program aims to lift spirits and reduce stress for patients, visitors, and hospital staff, enhancing the environment of care at Johns Hopkins Medicine. Programs are short, informal, and accessible to all.

THE PEABODY INSTITUTE AND JOHNS HOPKINS MEDICINE

Music for a While at the Johns Hopkins Hospital is part of an extensive partnership between the Peabody Institute and Johns Hopkins Medicine that brings the healing power of music and dance to the hospital environment. The Peabody Institute and Johns Hopkins Medicine together have created site-specific programs in high-stress contexts, providing arts experiences to help reduce anxiety, alleviate pain, promote wellness, and improve patient and staff experiences.

The MFAW program is supported by the JHM Office of Service Excellence and Office of Well-Being, and was developed in collaboration with the Patient and Family Advisory Councils. Music for a While is part of a larger initiative to integrate the arts throughout the healthcare environment for the benefit of patients, guests, healthcare providers, and staff.
